Description

Custom pages section is represented as a hierarchy of sections and subsections. This hierarchy is implemented in the form of the table consisting of the following columns:

1. The title (of sections and their subsections)
2. The address (the names of sections or subsections written in Latin script. The address is displayed in an address bar.)
3. A Menu (the menu type this section is assigned to)
4. A Language (i.e. language version of the section and its subsections)
5. Actions (what one can do with the section and its subsections)

Each section or subsection is a page. The only difference is that the ones (subsections) are subordinates of others (sections). Thus, for clarity sake, we call these pages “sections” and “subsections”.

Menus on website

Sections and subsections fall into three different menus.

Menu Location	The way it looks like On website
Top
Sidebar (The menu is visible when a section or subsection created precisely in Content is selected by a user)
Bottom

A section can be configured to not display in a menu at all.

A sidebar menu can be set up in the Configuration section.

One can choose the pages to display in different menus Using Navigation section.

Add section

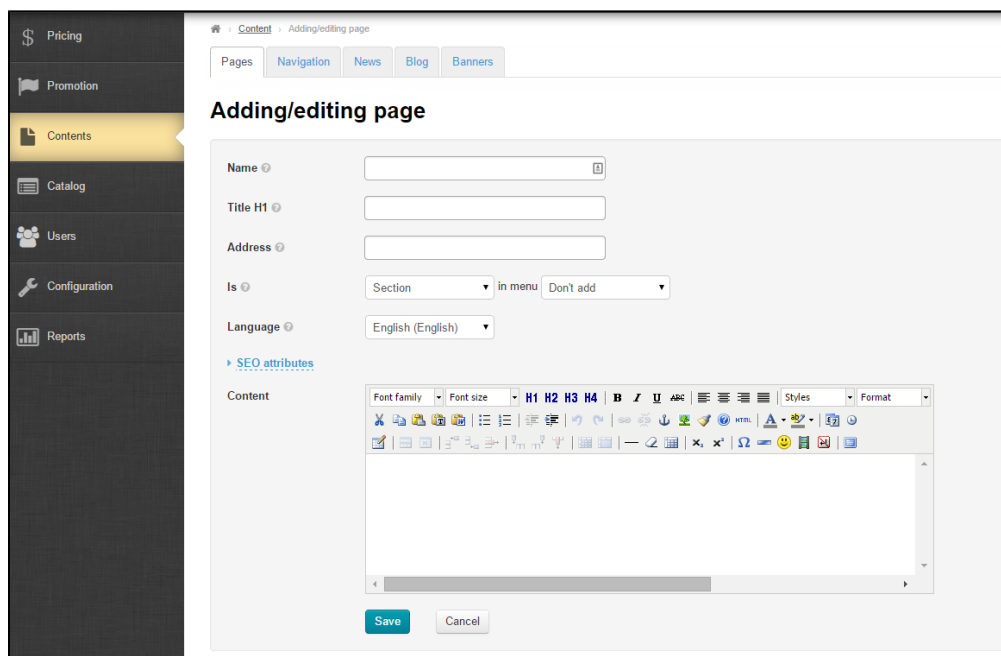

Important!

Since sections and subsections are added one after another (a new one is added to the end of the list) you should have a clear understanding of the sequence of sections (and subsections) within different types of menus. One can change the order of sections within a menu in the “Navigation” section.

To Add section you need to click the "Add" button.

This will open a form for adding a page.

The page:

- Can be a section or a subsection;
- Can or cannot be added to the menu;
- Can be a page in any language available.

Once you’ve done that the selected section with the “Edit text” button will be opened in a new browser tab.

Click the "Edit" button. This will bring up a text editor (in the same manner as in the "Add Content" part).

Make all necessary modifications and save them by clicking "Save" button.

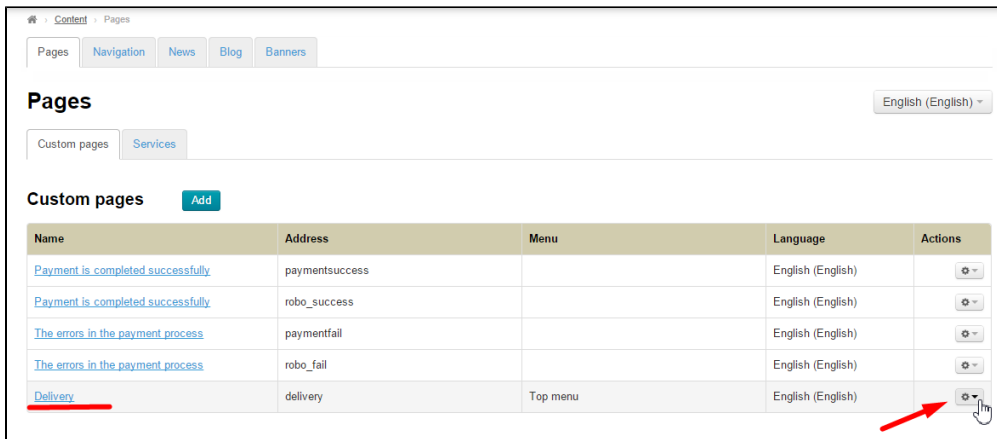

Upon saving all changes will appear On website.

Delete

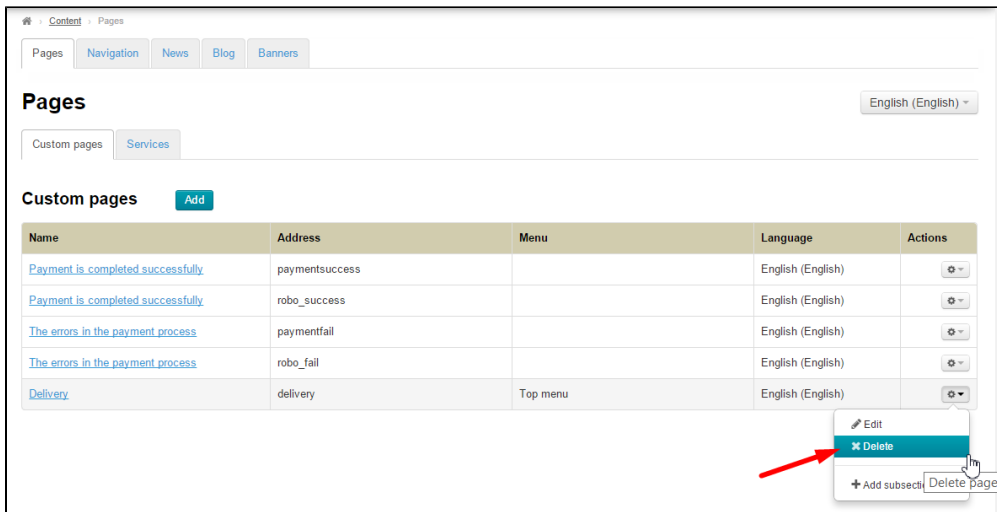

If it is necessary to delete a section one should remember:

1. A section (with all information) will be permanently deleted.
2. In case there are subsections in a section they will automatically be subsections of the superior section.

To delete a section Click the gear button in the "Actions" column in the string that contains a section to be deleted.

From the subsequent drop-down list select the "Delete" button.

Once you have clicked the "Delete" button you should confirm the deletion. A confirm screen will appear asking if you are sure you want to delete the section.

Once you click "Yes" the section will be permanently deleted.

If there were subsections in the "How to choose the right size" section they would be subsections of the "Questions and Answers" section.

Add subsection

There are two ways to add a subsection:

1. Click the "Add" button
2. Select the section and add a subsection Using "Actions" menu.

Let's us consider both variants.

By clicking "Add" button

One can add a subsection in the manner as he or she did when adding a section (Please refer to “Add section” part of the present instructions). The only difference lies in the “is a” field.

The screenshot shows the 'Adding/editing page' form in a web application. The left sidebar contains navigation links: Pricing, Promotion, Contents (highlighted), Catalog, Users, Configuration, and Reports. The top navigation bar includes Pages, Navigation, News, Blog, and Banners. The form fields are: Name (Delivery), Title H1 (Delivery), Address (delivery), Is (Section, highlighted with a red box), in menu (Top), and Language (English (English)). Below the form is a rich text editor with a toolbar and a preview of the content: 'Shipping to USA?' followed by a paragraph about FedEx International Economy and a 'money-back guarantee' link. The bottom of the form has 'Save' and 'Cancel' buttons.

So then you need to click the “Add” button. This will bring up a form to be completed. Fill in all the fields as you did in the “Add section” part.

This screenshot is identical to the one above, showing the 'Adding/editing page' form. The 'Is' field, which is a dropdown menu currently set to 'Section', is highlighted with a blue border. The rest of the form, including the sidebar, top navigation, and rich text editor, remains the same.

In the “is a” string click the down arrow in the “Section” field.
